Turtle Travels

Out From the Sand
It's a starry night in August. A clutch of eggs lies hidden more than two feet below a sandy beach. The nest holds more than 100 eggs. Each egg is about the size of a golf ball. Inside each one, there may be a baby green sea turtle.

From the start, what happens to these turtles depends on the environment. The temperature of the sand determines whether sea turtles hatch as male or female. The sand here on Costa Rica's Tortuguero Beach is warm.

The screenshot shows the Promethean Planet website, which is described as 'The World's Largest Interactive Whiteboard Community'. The header includes a navigation bar with links: Home, My Planet, Community, Resources, Professional Development, Store, and Support. A search bar is located in the top right, with a shopping cart icon showing '0 Items $0.00 View Cart'. The main content area features a 'Welcome!' message, a video titled 'Bringing More to the Classroom' by Jessica Kumari, and several resource cards: 'Bicycle History', 'Quiz & Voting Template', and 'Cloze Activities'. A sidebar on the right displays user statistics for 'Kelly Hammond', including 'Resources 34,500', 'Downloads 15,235,109', and 'Members 997,036'. The footer contains three promotional banners for 'BP Educational Service', 'Give Your Lessons the X Factor', and 'GreenLight Learning in the Planet Store'.
